Judging by a recorded vote of the House of Representatives on the quesion of the submission to the states of mendment to the Constitution for dry in sentiment and only awaits an opportunity to prove it at the polls. We shall continue to pray and work for national prohibition as the only final solution of our liquor problem.

final solution of our liquor problem.

"We call upon our senators and representatives in the Congress of the United States to support a resolution submitting to the several states a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors throughout the United States."

The liquor question in the District of Columbia was spoken of as follows:
"We urge the Congress of the United States to enact as speedily as possible the necessary legislation to banish the traffic in liquor from our National Capital and make Washington not only a model city for our country, but the public toward the question of prohibi-ference.

The memorial services, which began at 11 o'clock, were led by Rev. Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman. Memoirs were read in memory of John T. Wightman, J. Hervey De Laney, Charles L. Damaron, Henry Haman, Peter W. Jeffries and Lafayette Fox.

Odds and ends of conference business were attended to this morning, in an endeavor to adjourn early. One of the financial secretaries reported that during the year $15,759.20 had been given to foreign missions by the Baltimore conference eign missions by the Baltimore conference and $20,700.25 to home and conference

Case Goes to General Committee.

B. W. Bond, chairman of the committee on federation of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South, reported that the matter of the consideration of the action on the protest from the Methodist Episcopal Church against the entrance of the south church into Herntodon, Va., during the preceding year had resulted in the Methodist Episcopal Church committee taking the case before their general committee on federation. The south church committee had protested that the prior cases of the Bladensburg and Emory churches had not been disposed of yet, although they had been laid before the Methodist Episcopal Church committee in December, 1911.

largely attended. It was presided over by Rev. John A. Taylor of Roanoke, Va., vice chairman of the conference Sunday school board, and opening prayer was led by Rev. S. A. Parker of Berryville, Va.

The betterment of the Sunday schools of the church and the spread of their influence was the theme of speakers.

"Everything in modern life is being standardized except the Sunday school," said Arthur L. Dietrich, Sunday school field secretary for the conference. "We should grade the children according to their knowledge of religious matters."

J. M. Way of Spartanburg, S. C., field secretary of the Atlantic division of Sunday schools, said:

"We are not in a position to judge of the need to the community for running these 'trailers,' but as experience has shown the danger of these cars we urge that no effort be spared to mini-mize the loss of lives and limbs of our citizens.

"As other cities are urging the paywithin 'safety-first' car we are opposed to Washington going back to the type which the street car companies report which the street car companies report as being fourteen times more dangerous even with conductors; but as we do not know the exigencies of the case our protest is against the use of the 'trailers' without conductors."

Protest 17th Street Line.

Protests against the proposed extension of the lines of the Capital Traction Company along 17th street continue to reach the commission. The latest is a petition signed by forty-five residents petition signed by forty-five residents and property owners of 17th, 15th and I streets and Massachusetts avenue. Practically all the complaints are based on the claim that the extension would result in a depreciation of property values. The company's request for permission to build the line will be considered by the commission at a public hearing to be held April 22 at 10 a.m. in the boardroom of the municipal building.
